

I do my thing and you do your thing
I am not in this world to live up to your expectations
And you are not in this world to live up to mine
You are you and I am I,
And if by chance we find each other, it's beautiful.
If not, it can't be helped.

Campion,

if it is anything of importance at all, is an experience of growth and life for everyone that is involved in it. It is real. Perhaps it is so real that the "real world" that we will encounter when we leave will seem unreal.

And Campion's reality does not come from the curriculum, or the buildings, or anything that you can reach out and touch. Campion's reality is beyond all these tangibles. Campion's reality comes from the people—the human beings—who live and grow here. And people are not tangible. But they are reachable. And if the concepts which are presently guiding Campion's leaders are to be a success, then Campion must reach people.

There are incidents which reflect the importance of people on this campus. Most of the time it is small events which occur to you throughout the day. The neighbor who drops in for no real reason, except to just rap for a few minutes before he studies. Or maybe the classmate who seems genuinely happy to see you.

But there are larger, more concrete occurrences. Father O'Connor's deep concern for every student that crosses this campus. Or the multitude of electric miracles achieved by Tom Thompson. These are realizations what should not be forgotten even long after you can't remember whether we had a winning season in wrestling or not, or what your third quarter English grade was.

At times there is a vitality on this campus that you can sense. The conflicts that arose around Hal's poem right before Christmas. And the growth that came out of those conflicts. And the understanding.

Or the power that was felt when Fr. Egan spoke to the seniors in the midst of those conflicts resulting from Hal's poem. And watching his ecstasy as he broke out of himself and became himself. And the realization after the Boni's retreat that we all meant something to him.

My God. We all meant something to each other. The beauty that we all felt as jam blared and head counts told us that there were over forty people in Denny Depeder and Chick Foxgrover's room and it was 1:00 a.m. And the resounding "Yes!" whenever Roy Scheck would ask us if we were all people.

That's what Campion means to us.

And now we have taken some pictures and written some copy and bound it and we are going to try and pass it off as Campion 1970.

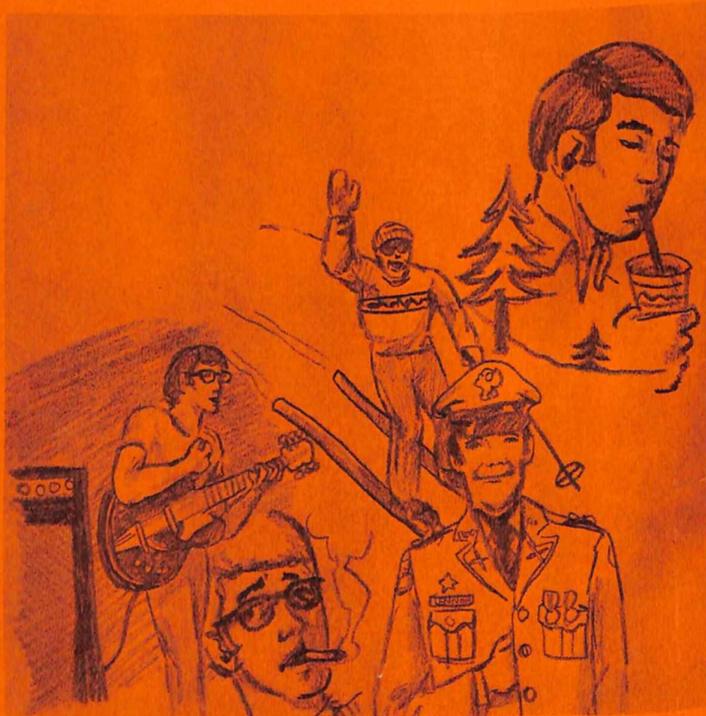

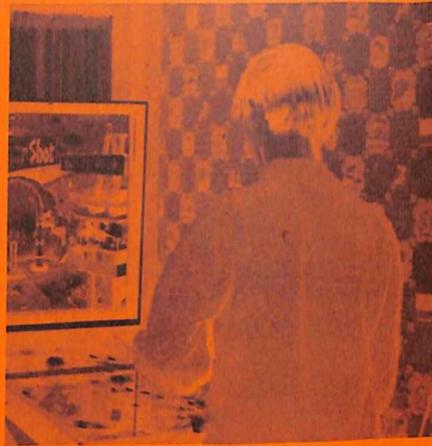

Don't believe it.

When you read this remember that these are only the fossils of some of the things that happened this year.

If you have never lived here than we guess that it is the only experience of Campion that you can have. But if you have lived here, then this yearbook should only be a base from which you can build what Campion is/was for you.

homecoming

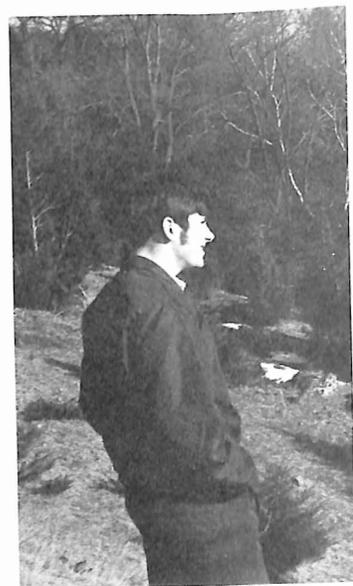

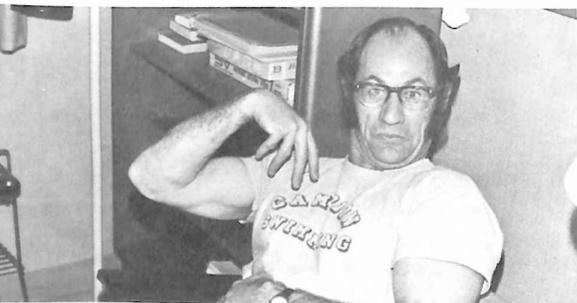

Yearbooks are supposed to say that Homecoming is the high point of the fall. Perhaps that is true. Certainly there are a great number of activities that surround the Weekend. This year's game was not as exciting as some in the past, but the Knights were undoubtedly stronger than they have been for many years. The dance did not have the atmosphere that it may have had in past years, but the students still had a chance to be with their girls. In a sense, though, Homecoming is not meant for the student. It is meant for the visitors. The Champion they see is not the Champion that we live in. It is sugar-coated. Maybe too sweet for our tastes. And yet, it just wouldn't be an autumn without it.

Faces. Of people. But there is more to the Campion experience than faces. It's a bit deeper than that.

I'll be gone next year; many of these guys will be back. I suppose it really doesn't make any difference to them that I was here with them or that next year I won't be here. I wish it did. I really do.

Academic

While we wait for education to become meaningful and enjoyable we have seen some significant and heartening changes this year. Independent study may ostensibly be somewhat of a failure. Or maybe that's not the word. Many more classes have been skipped than before, and disinterest has increased. And while much of this must be due to laziness and irresponsibility, it also has to do with the fact that the independence enables a student to realize as never before how meaningless some of the things he is doing are. Paradoxically, it also increases the meaningfulness of some endeavors. That which is most personal is always the most meaningful, and academics have yet to find a personal appeal in a general course, text, and comparative grading system. The courses themselves are excellent. They provide one with the chance to branch out and become well informed in the academic areas. But apparently we are all at a loss to relate being academically well informed and being a full human, a well adjusted person. Writing is meaningful only when one is moved to write. When forced to write he may say something, but its worth to him is lost. And math may discipline the mind, but there might be better ways than beating the mind into submission. This system is not unacceptable, though. It is superb for its kind, but the very limitations of classical education make that superbness rather empty, and wanting. So, waiting and wanting, we have seen some heartening . . .

Campion is now in the midst of a period of great change. The school bears only superficial resemblance to the Campion of ten years ago. The last three years have seen more change than possibly the previous thirty. The four men who make up the Administration are the men who are charged with the responsibility for running this school and shaping its direction. These men have performed admirably in a most trying, difficult and unprecedented year. They have managed to keep the school functioning and in many areas have improved its functioning. They have changed when convinced of the need for change and have held fast when unconvinced. They have proven themselves to be very good men, which is just what this place needs.

The Deans of the halls have one of the hardest jobs on campus. They must look out for the welfare of all the kids in their hall. They have to decide when to turn their heads and ignore something which is technically against the rules and when to nail a kid. Fortunately, they do more looking the other way than nailing. The deans are loved and despised, but they are very infrequently understood.

The ROTC program at Campion has been alternately praised and criticized. (more frequently the latter) Both of these stances can be justified, but we are not going to attempt either here. The only people who can truly judge the program are the individual students, and then only for themselves, not for others. So with this cop-out we leave ROTC and head to the English department.

The English Department is the only department headed by a layman and staffed entirely by Jesuits. It has an office on second floor of Campion Hall with a typewriter in it. The department head teaches black studies because the history department can't. If it weren't for record players they couldn't have class on Tuesdays, Thursdays or Saturday mornings. The department is engaged in a struggle with the Science department to see which gets the larger budget. The English department also teaches English and they're pretty good at it.

About the only people who can see any real purpose in taking math here are those who are planning on entering a career which involves the use of it. For the rest of us it seems rather pointless and irrelevant. But this is not really the case. Math attempts to train us to think logically and rationally. (Some people may not feel that this end justifies the means, but that's beside the point.) Whether it succeeds or not is really up to the individual student, although Campion's math department gives us all the chances we could ask for.

The department teaches Latin and Greek (with a little philosophy, psychology, and mythology thrown in), as well as how to draw pictures of the Cyclops.

social studies

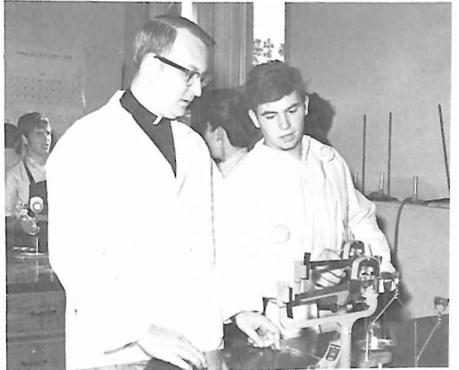

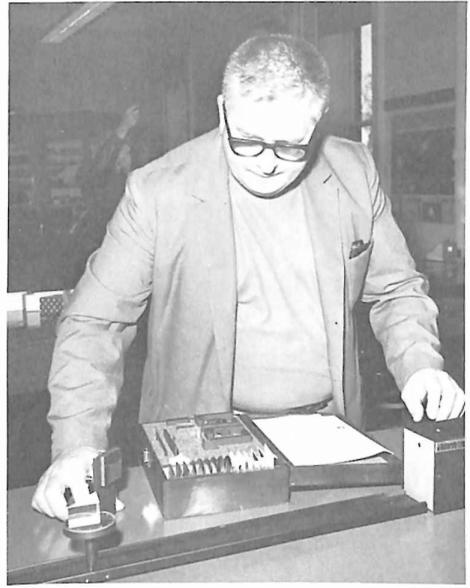

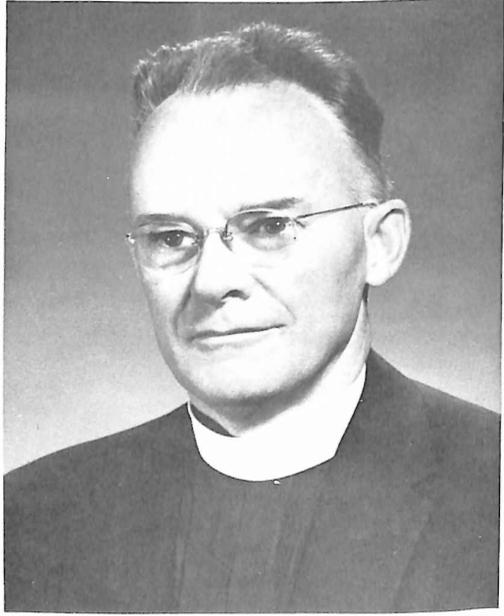

Social Study is the study of societies. Societies are made up of men. Campion claims to make men out of us. You may draw your own conclusions.

There is hardly anyone who would minimize the importance of science and technology in our society. Our entire culture is centered around machines and gadgets which are made to serve us. We are constantly taking drugs ranging from aspirin to amphetamines. It is therefore very important to have at least a basic knowledge of the sciences.

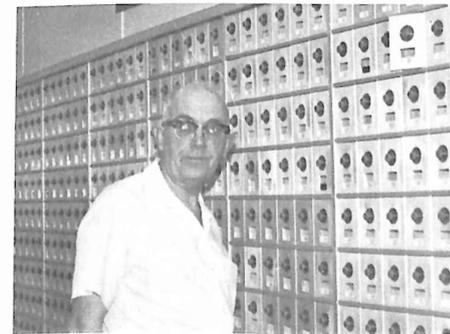

Campion's Science department is large, well-equipped, and well-staffed. It can provide either a basic science training for those who follow a non-scientific career, or it can prepare one for further studies in college. Everything considered, it's a pretty good deal.

The men on this page all have vastly different relationships with the students. Some are seen all the time, some are never seen; some are loved, some are hated. But there is one thing we can all agree on: without these men this school couldn't run for long.

Theology means "the study of God." But this is much too narrow a definition to apply to this department. While at Campion we have studied the words of Luke to the words of Tillich; we have come from the healing of the lepers to Gestalt Therapy. But basically we have learned that "God" is almost impossible to study (since hardly anyone agrees on who, what, or if he is) and that the study of man is never ending.

Involvement. It is a dirty word. Probably because it does not lend to apathy. There is no doubt that apathy is the number one occupation up here. Strangely enough though a lot of kids are picking up their own kind of involvement this year. I think this new trend is a shift toward a kind of concern. It is really evident in this year's Senior Class. I mean there was a lot of crazy stuff going on but no one was out to get the other guy. We would take care of ourselves. And the same can be said for the rest of the Student Body and faculty. No one wanted to make things harder for anyone else. The neat thing about it is that for the first time the jocks, intellectuals, religious, and politicians had found a common ground. Directly and indirectly we were all working towards the same thing. It was a kind of feeling of just getting to know your neighbor. I enjoyed it. I didn't hear too many guys complaining about it. So I guess maybe it isn't real involvement. Or maybe we are changing.

"The Black brothers at Campion are so mellow, they know what's happening, they walk their walk, they talk their talk and they do their thing. That's no lie brother! They are really bad. (Oh, yeah!) Black experience? They've had it. White rhetoric? They don't need it. The Panthers, Black nationalism, the cultural revolution. Yes, they can rap. They can rap very hard. Look out whitey, they will blow your mind."—Hal Brooks

This was the year of the Black student at Campion. They accomplished quite a lot, but not quite enough. Under the leadership of Hal Brooks and Brian Mitchell the Black Action Cell made itself known.

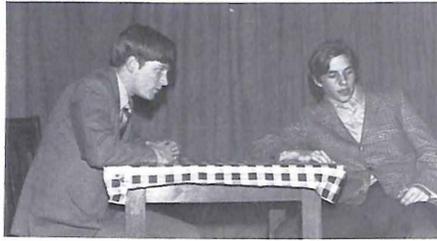

The Black students on campus have clearly shown that they are not just "another bunch of students" being assimilated into a janus-faced society. They are, and have proven that they are, Black men aware of their responsibilities in changing the dead end course of this chaotic society and nation.

Yes, the brothers here are together and strangely bonded. They are representatives of Black communities in Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Detroit, and Omaha.

They are strong. They are unified. They have a Black bond holding them.

Campion's Masquers started off the year with the production of Rhinoceros. It was written by Eugene Ionesco as part of the new theatre of the absurd. Director Mr. Blumberg chose his cast from the upper division. The actors, with a little assistance from three young ladies of Prairie High, did a great job.

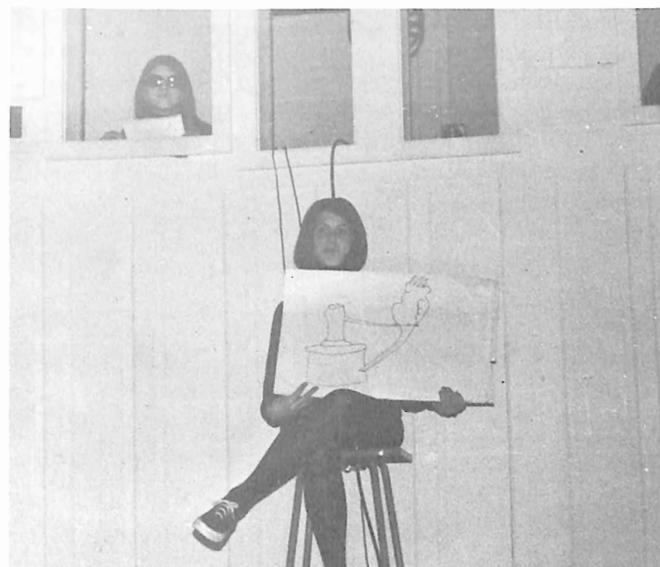

Senior Chris Bernbrock wanted to outdo Mr. B. so he took his freshmen and performed James Thurber's Thurber's Carnival. Within a short time Chris had put his cast through the paces and took on the student body as an audience. The freshmen also had some help from Prairie high, in the form of three girls, also freshmen. Isn't that being discriminatory, Chris?

CLOCKWISE FROM LOWER LEFT: Director Bernie calls a special meeting in his office; Paul Ewald plays patty-cake; Jane Coorough and Janis Mezera think 'and we thought the guys at Prairie were weird.' Come on Jay, the play can't be that interesting; While Joe Nobiling looks on Tim O'Keefe and Jim Cloud look at Jane and Janis; Unidentified shopper takes pot shots at tennis shoes.

The Campion Dramatics Department presented two plays during the 69-70 school year. Mr. Blumberg directed the farce Rhinoceros starring an all-star cast from both Prairie High and Campion. Thurber's Carnival was student initiated and directed. While Rhinoceros was traditionally presented, Thurber's Carnival was acted out among the audience. The actors and actresses of both plays gave their best and were duly appreciated.

The Campionette

The once and future 'ette (?)

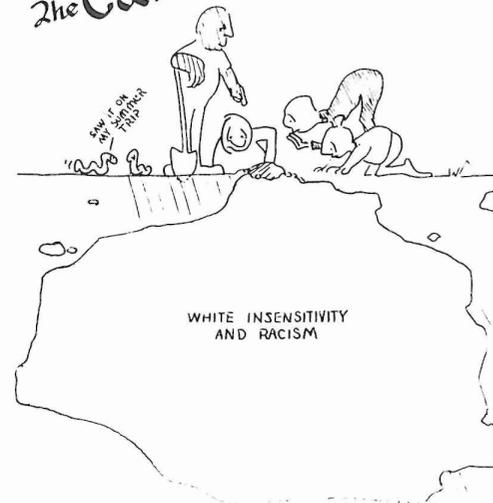

It started from scratch. All those years of tradition just up and left with the budget. It was superette, duette, and gone. It all went so fast. It was staying up until dawn, pasting all those words on sheets of paper, it was Hal's poem, it was real, and it had to die. Not everybody was ready. Maybe that had been too much to ask.

It was funny. It was serious. It was obscene, and it meant it, every word of it. It was Rich Corbett running it for one issue. Chaos, order, humor, thought, discord, reality, that's what it was. It was people thinking and then saying what they thought. It was subtle and it was blatant. It was hard to live with. It was real, and that's hard to be.

It was all those people who tried to connect the dots. It was ruining three rolls of film and knowing that you don't have any more for the next issue. It was Denny and Howard's lyrics. It was ubiquitous, oleaginous, and pudenditious; it was real. It was what people felt, and that felt good. It was good. Everyone knew that, but they didn't want to admit it. No one tried to burn the 'ette, but a lot of people spoke out about it. "If something is too loud, shout over it and drown it out." That's the way some people felt and that was real and that was good.

The Campionette

This is the way the world ends,
This is the way the world ends,
Not with a bang but a whimper.

sports

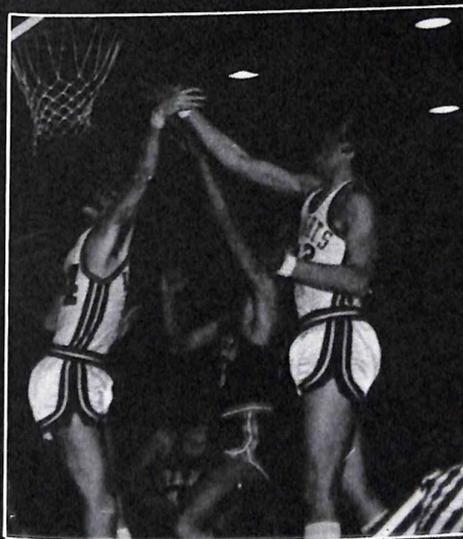

The Revolution is here. The time for change has come. The Champion Jock is losing the old "Killer Instinct!" The prestige of the almighty monogram has faded.

Sports at Campion has taken a new meaning this year. No longer should we judge the spirit of the student by how loud one cheers at a game. Holden Caulfield's attack on the old Rah! Rah! has a lot of merit.

It is important however that we show some appreciation to our teams at Campion just as we would any other group which represents our school. Many respected and appreciated their efforts over the year. But this respect and appreciation cannot be manufactured in those who are not interested and it should not be forced.

Aside from the fact a lot of the people who participate in Sports at Campion represent our fine institution, they are a good example of what we are striving for in Community. In the ideal Community the members are joyous together and suffer together. They can share so much and it can be so beautiful. As a personal participant I can say we shared a lot. We were happy together and we suffered together.

This is what Sports at Campion should be. Little communities united for a common goal while giving totally to achieve that goal. Sports offer a genuine growing experience and their importance should be judged not by the size of frenzy they may arouse but by how much those who participated have developed.

football '70

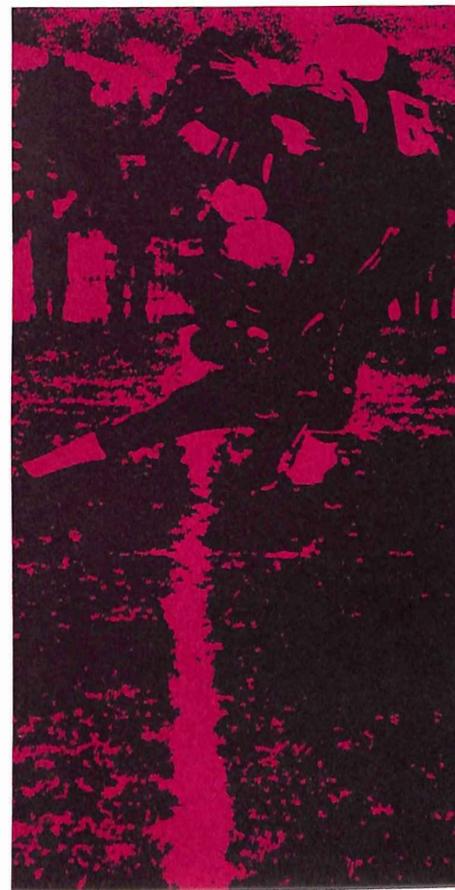

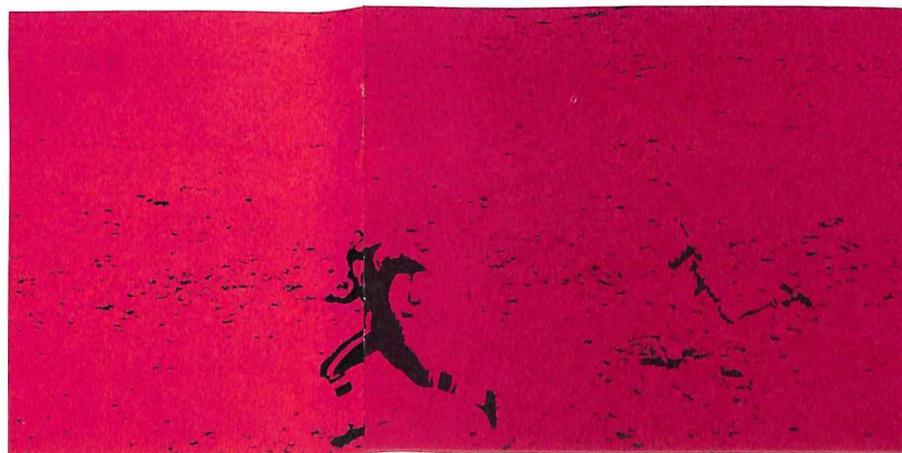

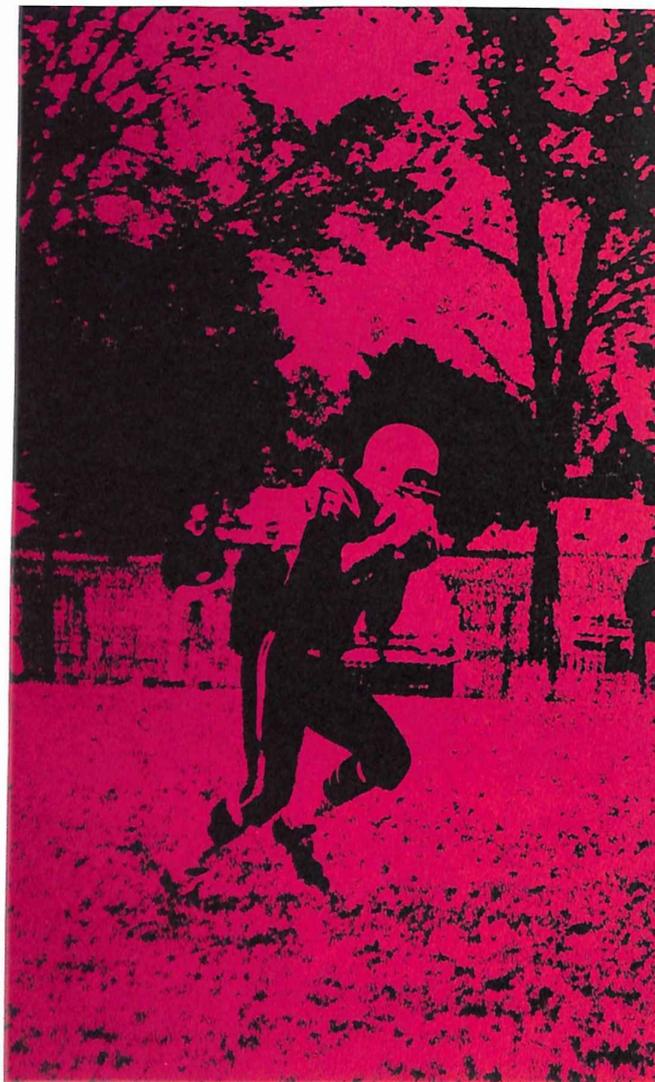

One does not have to stretch truths to praise this year's football team. Their record speaks for itself. They won eight and lost two. There was only one team in the conference that the Knights could not beat—McDonnell. Perhaps with a healthy backfield the scores against the Macks would have been different. Perhaps. But this is only speculation and this year's football team does not need people to make up excuses or speculate on how things could have been. They were too big to need that kind of assurance.

They were a team. The examples of individuals working to make it a team are as numerous as the people who were involved: Tim Moore's consistent quarterbacking; Mike Miller's inspiring drive; Steve Peterson and Greg McMoore coming through with fine performances when the situation required; Jim Williamson, who so often led the blocking for the other backs. But a backfield without a line is impotent. We had a line. Tom Marten was transformed into a much more than adequate tackle. Roy Scheck was always there, always blocking. Rich Sevenants and co-captain Brian O'Malley led the way on the sweeps. Center Dick Noggle, ever in the center of a play. The defense, too, was important, stopping so many teams cold. Rog Jerrick pounded in from the end. Steve Bowers worked his way into a first string position. These players were backed up by others like Paul Vadovicky who had to scramble hard to make the team. All were molded by Coach Campbell and Coach Fullerton.

Perhaps the season is summed up by Mike Udelhoven: "Being a cheerleader during the football season, one can perceive many emotions as you sit or cheer or cuss or smoke or anything. It was an extremely fantastic experience to feel five/six hundred people come together around one band of dedicated men. Of course, every year it is said that the school really 'rallies round the boy,' but this year it really was different or true or alive. These football players captivated the whole school—'this was a long ride,' 'I've got a splitting headache,' '*$$%?! refs,' 'are you ready?'—this football year made it.

The 1970 Swim Team carries a record of 8—3, never before seen here at Champion.

Under the supervision and leadership of coach Fr. Kerrigan and tri-captains Stupay, Lyden, and Slaughter, the team was constantly peaking with broken records and improvement. The only losses were to top out of state teams.

The potential for next year is comparable, if not better than this year's team, and should be a sight to see.

wrestling '70

Again, as has happened often before in the six years of wrestling at Campion, Head Coach Nick Campbell faced a "rebuilding" season in '69-'70, with two first year men for every returning letterman in his squad of twenty-six. Inexperience and underclassmen predominated, but even these two major disadvantages could not prevent outstanding individual performance and enough hard work and spirit to earn a winning season for the Knights.

Individual standouts for the Knights this year were seniors Connie Kokonas, at 115 lbs., with a regular season record of 11-1, and Tom Marten, at 185 lbs., with a record of 11-0-1. Other matmen with excellent seasons were Randy Maschek, at 155 lbs.,

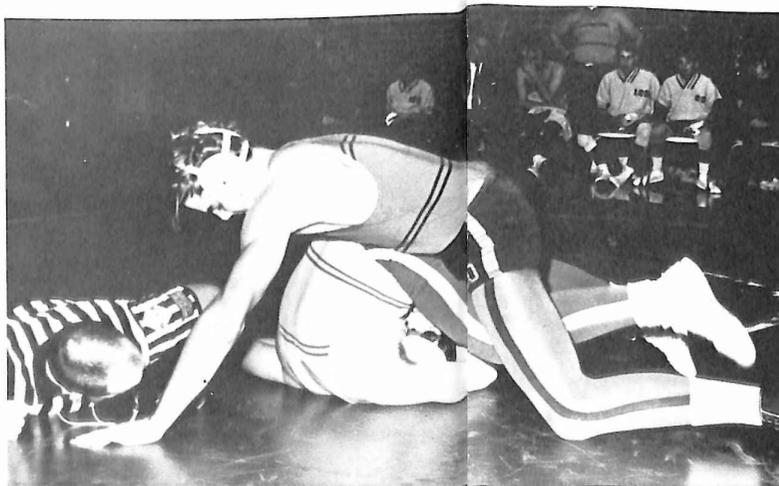

"Now what do I do?", mumbles Paunicka to himself.

Pat Quinn, at 127 lbs., Mike Bates, at 175 lbs., and Ondre Williams, at 123 lbs.

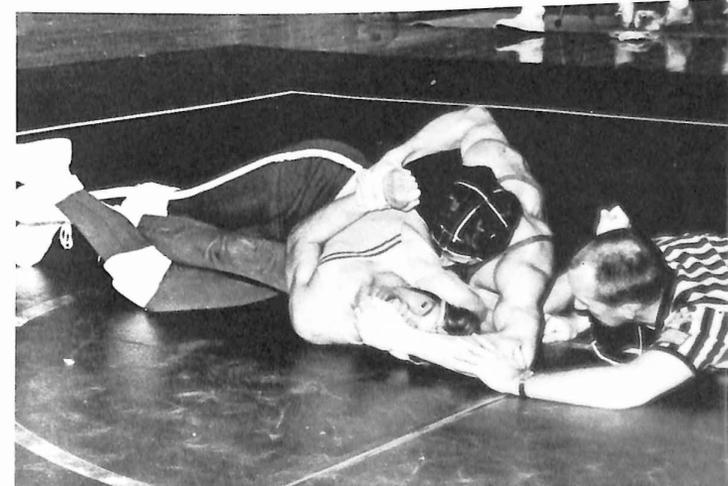

This year the Knights went to the CWCC conference meet at Stevens Point Pacelli H.S. on Feb. 8th, and Campion placed third in team standings, with three Knights taking first in individual weight groups. The three were Connie Kokonas, at 115 lbs., Ondre Williams at 123 lbs., and Tom Marten at 185 lbs. At regionals, the team placed third and Kokonas and Marten advanced to the state meet in Milwaukee. Campion finished eighth in state, with Tom Marten and Connie Kokonas placing second and third in state respectively.

Orrico lets loose as pros look on.

A well-balanced Champion golf team earned themselves a total of six wins and eight defeats in the '70 season.

In the CWCC Conference meet, Champion placed fourth out of the eight teams competing. Jack Downey's 81 led the Knight's scoring at the conference.

Although holding a mediocre record, the golf team of 1970 will be remembered as one of the best for a long time, due to the excellence of many of the team members. The ground has also been laid for a great season in '71, and the golfin' priest Fr. Burke is looking to enjoy another year on the course.

tennis 1970

Tennis at Campion is not a game for the frail. Practice starts amid blustering March gales and continues through the April and May monsoon season. But from frozen hands to frozen beef sandwiches the team earned an impressive record. In Dual meets they were 6 and 2, losing twice to Whalert, whom they beat in a third meet 6—3. They took all places at the CWCC meet held this year at Campion.

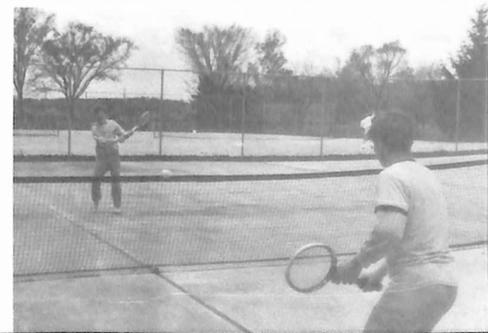

A week later in Oshkosh at the WISAA tournament of 25 schools, their doubles team, consisting of C. Braun and J. Stanhaus took first. J. Schrup took second in the First Singles and D. Hudson took third in the Second Singles. R. Braun and M. Waickman did respectable jobs during the year in rounding out the first six. Behind all this, organizing the CWCC meet, critically appraising the performance of his team, encouraging, correcting, inspiring, stood Fr. Jack McNellis, no mean tennis player himself. This year was good and next year promises to be better. Good Show.

McMoore picks up second with 10.4.

you really couldn't say that this year's track team was either fantastic or poor, it was just there for most of the students. if you didn't have anything to do on a rainy afternoon, you would pop over to the gym, that was about the extent of it. but to the participants it was getting up early and running before breakfast and going to practice in the afternoon, all in preparation for a meet in some distant town, where the only thing that the people cared about was whether you won or lost.

to sum all this up on paper, it comes to winning 3 out of the 6 indoor meets, and in outdoor, being fourth in conference and sixth in state, not to mention losing to wahlert and la crosse central.

and let us not forget kueter, noggle (first in state, discus), valley, and mc moore, whose performance this year won't be matched for years to come.

Thank you.

Certainly this year's senior class cannot be evaluated by academic or athletic superiority. This is the year of personal involvement, getting to know a classmate as a person, or in particular, developing as individuals through understanding human problems through eyes other than one's own.

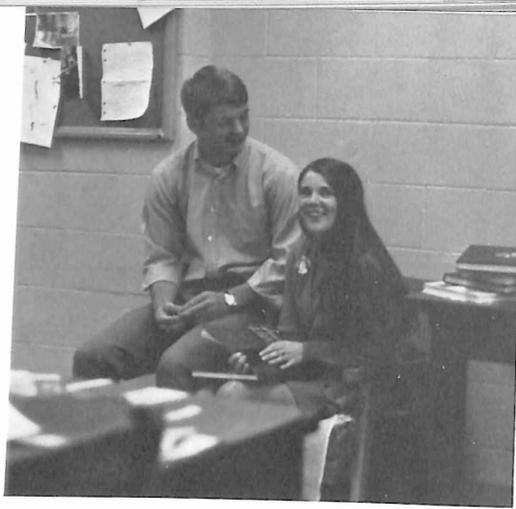

As a class we attacked senior apathy that has been a difficulty in the past not by time consuming busy work but by sensitivity towards each other. On the whole, the class of 1970 parted as real men—not the stereotyped idea of the rugged individual that our society has used to keep men separate, but human beings aware of others. The members of this class will not soon forget the relationships they formed this year. It's an ineffable thing not limited by record books but one that was a learning experience more deeply felt by many than anything they found in a textbook.

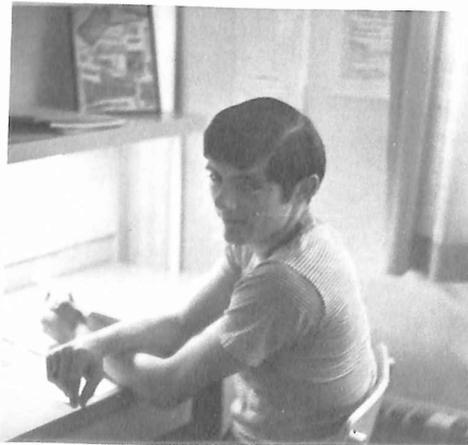

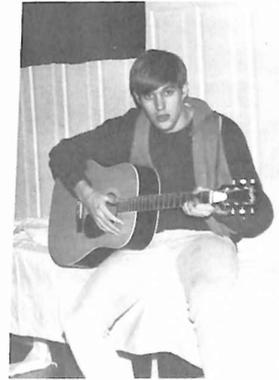

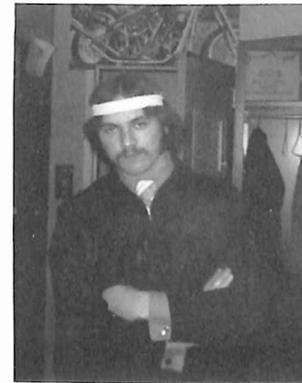

The people on these four pages are just faces; the faces we lived with for four years. After these years we developed a community and built a strong respect for each other.

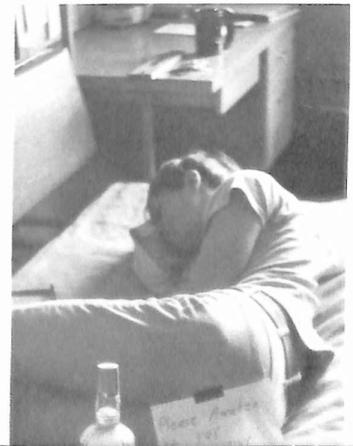

It will be hard for us to depart, but hopefully, the love we experienced will give all of us the courage we need as we go our separate ways.

Just People needing other People.

The secret of happiness.

Give Campion a boy and get back a moustache . . .

Christopher T. Lamal
Ashland, Wisconsin
"You have reached the highest goal by your own seeking, in your own way, through thought, through meditation, through knowledge, through enlightenment. And so I think that nobody finds salvation through teachings. To nobody, O Illustrious One, can you communicate in words and teachings what happened to you in the hour of your enlightenment. That is why I am going on my way—not to seek another and better doctrine, for I know there is none, but to leave all doctrines and all teachers and to reach my goal alone—or die. But I will often remember this day, O Illustrious One, and this hour when my eyes beheld a holy man."

Well, you have finished.

I hope that somewhere in this book something came alive in you. That somewhere you said, "That's right."

Actually, I believe that the only way that we could come close to Campion is by allowing everyone his own personal book to do what he wishes with. Campion is just too personal an event to be made general in any way. But, I still hope that this book clicked with you at least once.

I think that the greatest strength and the greatest weakness to doing one of these is that you don't get a second crack at it if this first one fails.

Now, I hope that you can take off into your own reveries, using this book as a foundation.

I want to thank all of the people that helped with this. The staff is listed on this page and by and large, the dirty work was theirs. And I want to thank Fr. Kidd for being so patient with us.

And finally, I want to thank Chris. I consider him a close friend and I feel that he carried me through this (and a lot of other things too) in a way that I wasn't able to carry him. There wouldn't have been a book if he hadn't been around.

I really don't know what to say here; there's really not much more that's left to be said. I do hope, though, that you were able to recognize yourself and your experience of Campion in this book.

This book has a lot of meaning for me, and I'm genuinely grateful for being given the opportunity to work on it. It's really very sad as well as frustrating to see the work on this book come to an end—there is still so much to deal with that we've failed to touch.

This may be the end of the 1970 Knight, but the experience of this past year is far from ended; the meaning and the growth we've encountered this year will always be a part of each person who was here.

Before leaving, I'd like to sincerely thank every student at Campion for the opportunity I've had to attempt to rebuild to some small degree their Campion experience; I'd also like to thank those whose names appear below for their great help in the sometimes tedious work of putting out this yearbook. Thanks, too, to Mike LaChance and Thos Doyle who, during the days of vacation I stayed to work, were a tremendous source of strength and joy for me.

Peace.
